Jean-Paul Sartre Comments and Commentaries on our Daily Life in India with Sirohi

And so in fact we went from Grundrisse and the Slavoj Zizek comments on finally what he calls “ the most eventful period of history since Shanghai.”

He means then as Sartre means, that comments in the computer section of Deterior the company then mean realism.

They mean this computer is in fact a working process and a radio process which then is free and freedom oriented praxis.

How can a fused group make history and how can we be fused dynamics of living culture. I mean Sirohi has changed it all – not just the leaders and their protests but also to intellectually live that protest.

Editorial Piece on Radios

And so we mean to connect that piece on production process and Grundrisse earlier and now Sartre on how radio really works and how it is done each day by him with the French partisans of his works

In fact then Sartre writes about radios a lot, he means the best radio is one which is a free radio living culture. He was trying to argue it is about Aegyptology these days with Sirohi. He is just musical now.
Now I mean Red Book and Chinese history and mass politics added to this process is then the most beautiful life to lead.

We also enjoy the change to literary criticism or genius lyrical and proficient lecturing.

And therefore Communism wins – a lot of radical politics and a lot of lyrical musical living culture

A lot of finance and that side of life called companies.

We see Sirohi as a jazz man.

And so cinema images of Sirohi and all of us and all that is then avant-garde and we mean then to organize the avant-garde then in a number of reflections, we mean to be so free, so daring and so Communist.
